What Personal Data We Collect And How It Is Collected

The Personal Data we collect about you depends on the nature of our relationship, such as whether it is gathered through our Websites, Services, or marketing activities. We collect most of this Personal Data directly from you—through your interactions with us or the Websites and the setup and use of the Services. Huntress also collects Personal Data through its normal business operations and in the administration of customer relationships. Personal Data may be collected as follows:

- Account and Services Information. We collect information from you to create an account to use our Services. Such information may include your name, email address, phone number, and password, among other items. We collect feedback you provide to us through the Services, and we collect data about how you use and interact with features in the Services.
- Data you Give Us. In order to enjoy the full functionality of the Websites or Services or to conduct business with us, you may be prompted to provide us with certain Personal Data. Such information may include your name, email address, phone number, and title, among other items, and is generally submitted:
  - By filling in forms (for example, a “Contact Us” form) on our Websites, at a trade show, or anywhere else we conduct business
  - By downloading or accessing the Services
  - By downloading documentation from our Services or Websites
  - By subscribing to newsletters or other communications
  - By using a chatbot
  - By corresponding with us by phone, e-mail, or otherwise using our contact details
- Customer Support and Service. When customers contact us for support or other customer service requests, we maintain support tickets and other records related to the requests. We may also collect call recordings related to support and customer service-related calls. If you use the chatbot feature on our Website or in our Services, we collect data that you choose to provide in your communications with the chatbot. This information can include your name, email address, phone number, account name or number, IP address, and the like.

- Business Contact and Customer Relationship Management. We collect and maintain information about our customers, including that gathered by our communications or on social networks, which may include company name, business contact name and title, phone number, email, and other contact details. We may also collect billing address, financial account, credit card information, order details, subscription and license information, and usage details. In addition, we collect user credential and profile data (name, contact, authorized users).
- Cookies. We use cookies, and similar technologies such as pixel tags, web beacons (referred to together as “cookies”) to provide functionality and recognize you across different Websites and Services and devices. For more information on our use of cookies, please see our Cookie Policy <https://www.huntress.com/cookies>.
- Usage Information. We collect information about customers’ usage of our Websites and Services as needed to provide and support the Websites and Services. Some features of the Services require you to input the data, install software on your endpoint devices, or create a connection to your systems. The Services collect data from your environment to provide your requested Services. When you visit our Websites or Services, our server automatically collects certain browser or device-generated information, which may in some cases constitute Personal Data, including but not limited to:
  - Your domain
  - Your connection type
  - Your device information and settings
  - Your IP address or other geolocation information
  - Your MAC address
  - Your browser type
  - Your operating system
  - Your page visits
  - Your device logs
  - Your interactions with the Websites and Services
  - The date, time, and duration of your visit
  - Information from third parties
  - Other information about your computer or device
  - Internet activity and traffic
  - URL requests
  - Ports and Protocols used
- Applications and Files. The Services may collect information on the existence, characteristics, and behavior of applications, processes, or files on your device. Depending on the Services you subscribe to and how you or your administrator configures those Services, Huntress may collect log files, registry keys, certificates, scheduled tasks, policy objects, and other objects from applications or other processes, or a determination on the security status of your applications, processes, or files, from other security applications or services (such as an antivirus service), including whether such activity could be categorized as bad, good, suspicious, or unknown. Additionally, if Huntress suspects that an application, process, or file is potentially malicious, we may collect copies of it for purposes of providing the Services and for malware research and analysis.
- Services Collection. We may collect information about you when you or your administrator of the Services sets up the Services (such as installing endpoint detection) or establishes a connection to a non-Huntress service (such as an email service). For example, you may connect Microsoft 365 to our Services to monitor and protect your Microsoft 365 environment. We may receive your name, email address, username, IP Address, events (including, but not limited to, changes to your account settings), and other data relating to your Microsoft 365 activity to identify malicious or suspicious behavior. Similarly, you may connect Google Workspace to our Services to monitor and protect your Google Workspace environment. We affirm that Google Workspace APIs are not used to develop, improve, or train generalized AI and/or ML models. The information we receive when you link or integrate our Services with another service depends on the settings, permissions, and privacy policy controlled by that connected service.

- Third-Party Sources. We may collect Personal Data from third-party services, social media platforms, public databases, joint marketing and advertising partners, event sponsors, referrals, or our business or channel partners. We may combine this information with information we collected by other means described above to improve our records, create more personalized advertising, and suggest services that may be of interest to you.

We make Personal Data into anonymous, aggregated, or de-identified data by removing or not utilizing information that makes the data personally identifiable to you. We may use this anonymous, aggregated, or de-identified data for research or analytics and we may share it with third parties for our lawful business purposes, including to provide the Service, analyze and improve the Service, analyze and report on security risks, and promote our business. For example, in order to promote awareness, detection, and prevention of Internet security risks, Huntress may create and share anonymous, aggregated, or de-identified information (related to, e.g., potential or actual security incidents, malware, security threat data, diagnostic and usage related data, effectiveness of security awareness training, contextual data, threat detections, and indicators of compromise) with research organizations and other security software vendors and professionals via publications, blog posts, or social media, and provided no customer identifying information is shared without written permission of that customer. See our Subprocessor List, available at www.huntress.com/legal, for more details. However, we have taken appropriate safeguards to require that your Personal Data will remain protected in accordance with this Privacy Policy. Huntress offers a Data Processing Addendum, available at www.huntress.com/legal, with European Commission approved Standard Contractual Clauses, to meet the adequacy and security requirements for our customers located in or that operate in the EEA, UK, or Switzerland, and other international transfers of Personal Data with similar privacy regulations.

To determine the appropriate retention period for Personal Data, we consider the amount, nature and sensitivity of the personal information, the potential risk of harm from unauthorized use or disclosure of your Personal Data, the purposes for which we collect or process your Personal Data and whether we can achieve those purposes through other means, and the applicable legal requirements. Following the end of the relevant retention period, we will delete or anonymise your Personal Data.

Additional Information for California Residents

This section provides additional details about the Personal Data, or “personal information,” we collect about California consumers and the rights afforded to them under the California Consumer Privacy Act or “CCPA,” as amended by the California Privacy Rights Act or “CPRA”, to the extent such information is not exempt from the CCPA.

California law requires that we detail the categories of personal information that we collect and disclose for certain “business purposes,” such as to service providers that assist us with securing our Websites and Services or marketing our products, and to such other entities as described in earlier sections of Privacy Policy. In addition to the information provided above, we may collect the following categories of personal information from you, your employer, data analytics providers, and third-party services providers for our business purposes:

- Identifiers. Such as direct identifiers, such as name, alias user ID, username, account number; email address, phone number, address and other contact information; IP address and other online identifiers; other government identifiers; and other similar identifiers
- Customer Records. Such as personal information, such as name, account name, user ID, contact information, employment information, account number, and financial or payment information, that individuals provide us in order to purchase or obtain our products and Services. For example, this may include account registration information, or information collected when an individual purchases or orders our products and Services, or enters into an agreement with us related to our products and Services
- Commercial information. Such as records of personal property, products or Services purchased, obtained, or considered, or other purchasing or use histories or tendencies
- Usage Details. Such as browsing history, clickstream data, geolocation data, search history, access logs and other usage data and information regarding an individual’s interaction with our Websites, mobile apps, and other Services, and our marketing emails and online ads
- Professional Information. Includes professional and employment-related information such as business contact information and professional memberships
- Audio and Visual Data. Such as photographs and images (e.g., that you provide us or post to your profile) and call recordings (e.g., of customer support calls)
- Inferences. Such as inferences drawn from other personal information that we collect to create a profile reflecting an individual’s preferences, characteristics, predispositions, behavior, attitudes, abilities, or aptitudes. For example, we may analyze personal information in order to identify the offers and information that may be most relevant to customers, so that we can better reach them with relevant offers and ads

We collect this information for the business and commercial purposes described in the “How and Why We Process Your Personal Data” section above. We share this information as described in the “Who We Share Your Personal Data With” section above. The CCPA defines “sell” broadly to include disclosing or making available personal information to a third party in order to receive certain benefits or services from them. While we do not “sell” personal information to third parties in exchange for monetary compensation, we may make personal information available, which may be defined as a sale by the CCPA; this is common practice among companies that operate online, such as sharing with third party advertisers for purposes of targeting advertisements on Huntress and non-Huntress websites, applications, and services. As defined by the CCPA, we may “sell” usage details and identifiers to third party advertising networks, social networks, co-sponsors of marketing events, and data analytics providers. In addition, we may allow third parties to collect personal information from our sites or services if those third parties are authorized service providers who have agreed to our contractual limitations as to their retention, use, and disclosure of such personal information, or if you use our sites or services to interact with third parties or direct us to disclose your personal information to third parties. To learn more, please see our Cookies Policy, available at www.huntress.com/cookies.

As further described above, we may collect personal information from the following sources:

- Our customers
- Business partners and affiliates
- Directly from the individual
- Advertising networks
- Data analytics providers
- Social networks
- Internet service providers
- Operating systems and platforms
- Publicly available sources

In addition to the rights detailed above in the “Your Rights” section of this Policy, subject to certain limitations, the CCPA provides California consumers the right to request to know more details about the categories or specific pieces of personal information we collect (including how we use, disclose, or may sell this information), to delete their personal information, to opt out of any “sales”, to know and opt out of sharing of personal information for delivering advertisements on non-Huntress websites, and to not be discriminated against for exercising these rights.

California consumers may make a request pursuant to their rights under the CCPA by contacting us at privacy@huntress.com. We will verify your request using the information associated with your account, including email address. Government identification may be required. Consumers can also designate an authorized agent to exercise these rights on their behalf. Authorized agents must submit proof of authorization.
